INTRODUCTION

This is a proposal to provide data collection and an assessment of the economic impact of the World of Outlaw race event at the Dodge City Raceway in 2010. The Institute performed similar study in 2003 and has extensive experience in economic impact research and community and economic development research in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, and Colorado.

SCOPE OF WORK

The objective of the study is to assess the economic impact of the World of Outlaws event for Dodge City using economical methods. To accomplish this objective, the Institute will survey spectators and race crew members during both days of the race event. Using best survey research practices and methods, professional Institute personnel and student staff members will conduct short face-to-face interviews with spectators and race team members to assess the following:

1. The number of family members or team members in the interviewee’s party.
2. The community of residence of the family or team.
3. (If from a community other than Dodge) The number of days the family or team is spending in Dodge for the racing event.
4. (If from a community other than Dodge) The amount of money each family or team is spending on lodging, meals, fuels, and other items during the weekend of the World of Outlaws event.
5. The Institute will also assess satisfaction with the racing facility from both spectators and race team members, and assess willingness to attend the event again the following year.

Data will be collected using a paper-pencil questionnaire. The questionnaire will be handed to the respondent and collected by the surveyor on the spot. Analysis will focus on the money spent by family and team members in Dodge City by spectators and teams that usually reside in other communities and traveled to Dodge City for the racing event.

Institute personnel will analyze the data collected and write a report of the findings. The report will be provided in electronic format (.pdf).

Costs

The cost the questionnaire design, travel and lodging for interviewers, data collection and analysis, and report writing and delivery is $3,450. This amount assumes a one page questionnaire (for each survey population). If the client desires to include additional questions to those necessary for achieving the information objectives noted above, the Institute reserves the right to ask for additional charges. The additional charges will be based on the length of time the added questions increase the length of each interview and the extent of analysis required for reporting each question’s results.

Payment will be made in two installments. One half will be paid to the Institute upon signing of the contract. The other half will be billed upon completion of the draft report.

Upon review of the draft report by the point of contact, the Institute will provide a final version of the report in .pdf format. If the client would prefer paper copies of the final report in addition to the electronic version, paper copies can be printed at FHSU. The Institute will bill the client for the costs of the desired number of bound color copies. The Institute will also post the electronic version of the report on its own website 60 days after the final version is delivered. A presentation of the study results will be made by the author of the report or another professional staff member at a mutually agreed upon time and location. Travel expenses (50.5¢ a mile) and lodging expenses (if necessary but not expected) incurred for the presentation will be charged to the client. The Institute will make professional personnel available for additional presentations for a consultation fee plus travel expenses.

Equipment and Technical Capabilities

The Institute has state-of-the-art data collection capabilities. For telephone surveying the Institute uses Ci3® and WinCati®, which are integrated into a comprehensive Computer Aided Telephone Interview (CATI) system. This CATI system is an industry standard in opinion and marketing research. This server based software is used in the Institute’s 20-station computer equipped call center.

For self-completion surveys, the Institute often uses Remark’s OMR® scanning software. The Institute can electronically scan answers to such survey instruments, reducing data entry error.

The Institute is also experienced with web-based surveying. The Institute uses a server-based Computer Aided Personal Interviewing (CAPI) system maintained by Fort Hays State University.

In addition, all personnel assigned to this project have personal computers with more than ample hardware and software resources to handle all word processing, statistical analyses, and graphic work necessary for all stages of the project described herein.
